Feel at Home in The Hague – A Goody Bag Worth Coming For

In the last few days we have drawn attention to various aspects of the forthcoming International Community Fair, which will take place on Sunday September 21. Part of a devious marketing plan? Marketing, yes, devious? No need. Naturally we are enthusiastic about this Fair. We are after all the organisers and want to see it succeed. However, we are also excited and motivated by all we have been able to weave together to ensure an event which is informative and appealing while at the same time lively and attractive. The ongoing activities in the Challenge Center, Inner Peace Corner, Children's Area and Podium will ensure a continuous reason to wander around the Fair. The added scheduled programme in the Children's Area may require some planning of course, but so will a thorough examination of the 'Goody Bag'. Perhaps during a well deserved rest at the Coffee Corner or International Food Court you can take the time to discover what there is inside.

Every ticket holder will receive a Good Bag – and we call it such, because it does indeed contain some goodies. First and foremost, what we are most proud of is 'Feel at home in The Hague – The Magazine' carefully crafted by 'a hand in The Hague' (www.ahandinthehague.com) and DTPHulp (www.dtphulp.nl) and published by TheHagueOnLine and Wegener Huis-aan-huis Blad BV, this magazine offers not only a glimpse into daily living in The Hague through the eyes of other internationals, but includes a selection of cultural events during 2008-2009 for which Dutch is not required. A magazine to keep for the year therefore – keep your eye on this site for more details of this publication.

"And that is not all", as they say. There are of course, informative flyers, surprise extras as you may expect, but also a number of discount vouchers, such as those offered by Shirasagi (Japanese restaurant); Sea Life Museum; Hands at Work, Aveda, Leiden Museums and others we do not know. Besides that, we are particularly proud of the beautiful bag itself – definitely an item you will want to be seen around town with ☺.

So, if the activities do not draw you, let 'The Magazine' and the extra discounts be the reason to bring you to the 'Feel at home in The Hague – The International Community Fair' on Sunday September 21st. There is an entrance fee, and you may understand part of the reason – activities for free and goody's to go home with – not to mention everything else in between. At the door tickets cost €10/person and €15/family, purchased ahead of time at the ABC or via www.FeelathomeinTheHague.com these are discounted to €5/person and €10/family.

We look forward to seeing you there.
